OVERVIEW

Introduction

U.S. private and voluntary organizations (PVOs) are vital development partners working independently and alongside the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID). The Voluntary Foreign Aid Programs: Report of Voluntary Agencies Engaged in Overseas Relief and Development (VolAg Report) presents a summary of the work of 439 U.S. PVOs registered with USAID as of December 1, 2000. The VolAg Report is an annual snapshot of U.S. PVOs registered with USAID. The report also summarizes PVO¹ program activities, showing the geographical and sectoral focus of their activities, as well as their support, revenue, and expenditures. PVO Web page and e-mail listings can be found in the Registry section.

Recognizing the Voluntary, Autonomous Nature of PVOs

USAID views PVOs as its development partners carrying out long-term sustainable development activities and humanitarian relief. USAID recognizes the independent mission of PVOs as well as partners in USAID's programs. By joining forces, USAID and PVOs can accomplish more together than either could alone.

One of the challenges inherent in such a partnership is the achievement of the right mixture of collaboration and independence between public and private spheres. A healthy degree of separation between the two is essential for the integrity of each, but cooperation is also critical to the vitality of both. Thus, interdependence is the fundamental nature of the USAID and PVO partnership. In keeping with this principle of the public-private partnership, U.S. PVOs registered and supported by USAID must meet the "privateness requirement" legislated by Congress. To be eligible for grants from development assistance funds, U.S. PVOs must show that at least 20 percent of annual financial resources for their international programs come from sources other than the U.S. Government.

Voluntary Agencies: A Tradition of Support for Humanitarian and Development Assistance

USAID recognizes the significant role that PVOs play in providing humanitarian and development assistance to developing and transition countries. Although the PVOs registered with USAID vary markedly in size, scope, and capability, they share a strong commitment to improving the quality of life for people in developing countries. In its work overseas, the PVO community demonstrates the traditional American values of pluralism, voluntary action, and concern for others. PVOs foster sustainable self-help efforts at the community level and provide a direct channel for people-to-people programs that broaden the participation of the poorest citizens in the social and economic decisions that affect their daily lives and ultimately influence the well-being of nations.

The humanitarian activities of the PVOs originated many years ago in response to natural disasters and the social consequences of war. As a result of their ability to respond quickly and effectively, PVOs emerged as leaders in disaster relief. Gradually, their efforts broadened from relief and emergency food distribution to longer-term, more sustainable development programs designed to address the root causes of poverty and disaster mitigation. This transition from short-term relief to long-term development programs has strengthened the cooperation between USAID and the PVO community and has firmly taken root over the past three decades.

While continuing to respond to human needs in emergency situations, PVOs have increasingly contributed their resources to development activities that are crucial to helping people in the developing world improve their quality of life. Resources provided by PVOs promote broad-based economic growth and a more sustainable environment. PVOs also foster human capacity development, particularly through the attainment of health and education levels required for all citizens to contribute to, and benefit from, economic development. Simultaneously, the work encourages pluralism and the emergence of democratic institutions.

A Shared Basis for Collaboration

PVOs and USAID pursue common priorities that are aimed at achieving effective sustainable development. Although PVO objectives are not identical to those of USAID, their work with USAID promotes the achievement of USAID's Strategic Objectives, which lay out six broad goal areas: 1) broad-based economic growth and agricultural development encouraged; 2) democracy and good governance strengthened; 3) world population stabilized and human health protected; 4) human capacity built through education and training; 5) the world's environment protected for long-term sustainability; and 6) lives saved, suffering associated with natural or man-made disasters reduced, and conditions necessary for political and/or economic development reestablished. PVOs are actively involved in specific programs to meet these goals, in areas such as microenterprise development, child survival and health, natural resource management, civil society, capacity strengthening, food security, and humanitarian assistance and disaster relief.

In the new millennium, USAID will continue to place emphasis on programs that build strong, free-market economies, address the role of the informal sector, promote health and well-being, and foster the growth of microenterprises. Emphasis will continue to be placed on programs that protect the environment for future generations, while bringing about economic development and an equitable sharing of resources. USAID also supports programs that help fledgling democracies around the world, while facilitating the trend toward citizen involvement and civil society. Our efforts to link humanitarian and development assistance are increasingly important in USAID's programs. Such efforts are critical in our work to mitigate crises and to bridge the continuum from short-term relief to longer-term development. PVOs have the skills, experience, and innovative approaches to address these challenges.

USAID supports strengthened partnerships between PVOs and their local nongovernmental organization (NGO) partners. PVOs and NGOs are transferring capacity to local partners, a critical element of locally sustainable development. Through PVOs, USAID helps local NGOs empower citizens to take advantage of changes in their own environments, to add new energy to development efforts, and to strengthen the fabric of civil society.

Leveraging Private Resources for Development

PVOs make a vital contribution to USAID's foreign assistance programs. As data presented in this report indicate, the private resources devoted to international development by the PVO community exceed its U.S. Government support. For this 2001 VolAg Report, registered U.S. PVOs received $9.4 billion in annual private support, which was more than 6 times the amount they received in USAID support, which totaled $1.5 billion. Other U.S. Government agencies and international organizations provided an additional $1.4 billion, bringing the total support and revenue to $12.3 billion. For a detailed breakdown of support and revenue sources, see the U.S. PVO Summary of Activities and Privateness Percentages section of this report.

New Policies and Simplified Procedures Strengthen USAID/PVO Collaboration

In recent years, USAID has reformed many of its operating systems. Reforms facilitate improved development performance by emphasizing core values and simultaneously simplifying administrative procedures and eliminating unnecessary layers of bureaucracy.

USAID has simplified procedures ranging from PVO registration to grant competition and administration. The introduction of these and other ongoing changes will allow PVOs to focus on the achievement of development results rather than on the completion of unnecessary or unproductive paperwork. USAID handbooks, for example, have been replaced by a new, more flexible, Automated Directives System (ADS), available on-line at the USAID website www.usaid.gov. Of particular interest to the PVO community is the ADS Chapter 303—Grants and Cooperative Agreements. Comments from the PVO community assisted the Agency with revising the ADS 303. Interested parties are encouraged to visit USAID's Acquisition and Assistance website for pertinent information when doing business with the Agency.

The Agency's five core values are 1) an emphasis on achieving results in all Agency activities, 2) customer focus—the direct participation of USAID's ultimate "customers," those citizens of developing countries who benefit from USAID's work, 3) teamwork, including strengthened partnerships with PVOs and other development partners, 4) the empowerment and accountability for the use of resources, and 5) valuing diversity.

USAID's website at www.usaid.gov makes the Agency more accessible to its partners. The ADS, recent press releases, the USAID telephone directory, procurement information, and "Results-Oriented Assistance: A USAID Sourcebook" can be found at the website.

USAID'S Office of Private and Voluntary Cooperation: A Central Contact Point for PVOs and Competitive PVO Grant Programs

USAID's support to its PVO partners comes from many sources in the Agency, including USAID Missions overseas and regional and central bureaus in Washington. The Office of Private and Voluntary Cooperation (PVC) in the Bureau for Humanitarian Response (BHR) has a special responsibility as the central point of contact for U.S. PVOs and for information, coordination, and document dissemination. PVC is responsible for the registration of U.S. and international PVOs with USAID. PVC also administers PVO competitive grant programs and houses the secretariat of the Advisory Committee on Voluntary Foreign Aid, a federal advisory committee of U.S. experts on development and relief, chartered to advise USAID on its relationship with the nongovernmental sector. The committee serves as a link between public and private organizations active in international affairs and foreign assistance.

PVC, in coordination with the missions, regional offices, and other bureaus within USAID, carries out programs designed to enhance the impact of USAID/PVO collaborative efforts by strengthening PVOs' planning, management, and technical capabilities, allowing for more effective and sustainable programming at the local level and for effective transfer of capacity to local organizations. PVC provides this capacity-building support through a number of competitive grant programs, including the Matching Grant, Child Survival, Cooperative Development, Farmer-to-Farmer, Development Education, and the Ocean Freight Reimbursement programs. Through U.S. PVOs and their overseas partners, PVC is also working to strengthen local NGOs.

This document, commonly referred to as the VolAg Report, is the culmination of a year's effort by PVC to collect, validate, and disseminate a clear and factual report about the PVO community.

Mr. Juan A. Benitez. President and CEO

Enables the poor to free themselves from poverty. Founded in 1985, Enterprise supplies technical assistance, training, and funding to indigenous partner agencies. These agencies then provide training and loans to qualifying nationals for microenterprise start-up and expansion. The loan payback rate is greater than 90 percent. Loan capital is then reloaned within the community, creating opportunities for others to establish or grow their own small businesses as well. Those once destitute are empowered to overcome poverty, hunger, inadequate housing, lack of education, and ill health. Enterprise programs have served more than 800,000 people in more than 40 countries, including the United States.

Mr. Craig Kennedy, President

Makes grants in Central and Eastern Europe (CEE) that promote cooperation between the United States, Western Europe, and the newly democratic countries of the CEE in the areas of political, economic, and environmental reforms. Grants are made to independent nongovernmental institutions that encourage analysis and transatlantic dialogue on issues regarding security, foreign policy, and the development of civil society. Other grant recipients include institutions that strengthen public participation in the political decision-making process. Furthermore, GMF gives grants to institutions that provide young politicians and journalists the opportunity to develop leadership abilities through fellowships and professional development exchanges between the United States and Europe. GMF's grant making in the region totaled $2.5 million in fiscal year 2000.

Dr. William M. Novick. Medical Director

Continues its work by expanding services to new countries and providing needed education, clinical services, and updated equipment to its host countries. Over the past year, the ICHF has provided cardiac surgery to more than 170 children in 5 different countries (China, Croatia, Palestine, Peru, and the former Yugoslavia). ICHF has donated in excess of $530,000 in medical goods and services. ICHF's educational programs in Memphis and abroad have involved nearly 100 physicians, nurses, and technicians; ICHF believes that such a program is beneficial to the health and welfare of far more children with heart disease than those for whom it merely provides operations. Certainly the education and donated equipment result in colleagues being able to help more of their children after the organization's departure.

Provides humanitarian aid for orphaned and abandoned children in Russia, China, Vietnam, Sierra Leone, Cambodia, India, Nepal, Bulgaria, Brazil, Guatemala, Hungary, Romania, Kazakhstan, and Ukraine through renovating and equipping orphanages, offering medical and educational support, and encouraging additional staff to provide the best care for the children. MAPS continues to develop programs in Vietnam and India that provide housing and services to homeless pregnant women, offering them and their children better health care and family planning. This program is modeled after the program that MAPS already had in place in Maine under a Housing and Urban Development grant. Whenever possible, the orphans will be placed in their own culture. When that alternative is not possible, only then will MAPS seek a good adoptive family in the United States.

Dr. Charles E. Horton, Founder and Chair

Assembles teams of volunteer medical professionals from schools and hospitals in the United States and overseas to volunteer their services in prearranged teaching visits in host countries. PFP has completed more than 200 medical missions since its inception in 1984. These missions last from ten days to six weeks and are conducted in the Middle East. Central America, South America, Africa, Eastern Europe, the Caribbean, and parts of Asia. In addition to offering education to overseas medical providers and providing medical services to those in need, PFP arranges medical exchange programs and provides in-kind donations of medical equipment, machines, and supplies. Founded by Dr. Charles E. Horton in 1984, PFP is an apolitical, nonreligious organization that strives to help all those in need, regardless of politics or beliefs.

Mr. Samuel A. Worthington,
President and Executive Director

Helps more than 7 million children, their families, and communities in 42 developing countries. Childreach is the U.S. member of PLAN, a nonprofit, child-focused development organization without religious affiliation. The organization's grassroots approach helps families reduce their poverty, improve their environment, and better their health through child survival, education, family planning, microenterprise, and other integrated interventions. PLAN works through partnerships with local nongovernmental organizations and community groups, setting realistic goals and basic indicators, regularly evaluating program impact, and learning from its own experience and the experience of others.

PLAN raises more than 90 percent of its operating funds through child sponsorship, educating and involving 90,000 Americans in the process of poverty alleviation.

Mr. Mikael Norling, President

Provides emergency and disaster relief to victims of hunger, war, and natural disaster. Incorporated on January 28, 1997, Planet Aid (PA) undertakes development projects in developing countries and improves the living conditions of the poor. In 1998, PA collected 1,700 tons of clothes through its collection system. Some were sold to clothing dealers and 250 tons were donated to Angola. PA raises money through street and door-todoor solicitation and coin collection cans in businesses in Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, and California. PA delivered a 40-foot container of medicine, food, clothes, and toys as emergency aid to victims of Hurricane Mitch in Nicaragua.

Creates and sustains efforts in Central America aimed at addressing the long-term needs of people with disabilities, particularly those individuals who have lost limbs to acts of war, land mines, and diseases. Walking Unidos, the Prosthetic Outreach Program in Leon, Nicaragua is the result of three years of collaboration and planning between the Polus Center, the Nicaraguan community, and North American volunteers committed to creating accessible and affordable prosthetic care. The opening of a prosthetic clinic in August of 1999 was a result of many such partnerships. The new challenges of expanding services, building capacity, and creating sustainable programs necessitates follow-on programs. The Polus Center will confront these challenges by providing prosthetic training opportunities for men and women who themselves have lost limbs as well as assist program service recipients in developing businesses that help amputees acquire employment.

Mr. David Hoskins, President

Gets desperately needed supplies, vitamins, nutritious food, clothing, personal items, and medical equipment to the needy children and elderly of the New Independent States. Incorporated in March of 1996, RTCR&D first began its operation delivering medical supplies directly to doctors and hospitals, but now its outreach has gone far beyond this because of the vast needs of children and families. The organization's transport and distribution methods are both simple and effective. Almost every week throughout the year, a group of American volunteers arrives bringing a shipment of goods and supplies. These supplies are hand-delivered to the point of need: hospitals, clinics, and orphanages. This system of distribution ensures that not one ounce of humanitarian aid is ever misdirected because an RTCR&D staff member accompanies each shipment to its destination.

The ZSM program is designed to assist conservation and government organizations within DRC by providing training in biodiversity monitoring. The first initiative is to mount a survey of the Salonga National Park, the only government protected bonobo habitat. In 1998, however, civil war suspended all fieldwork. ZSM remains committed to resuming the survey when possible and is engaged in the following interim actions: encouraging diplomatic talks to curb the hunting of bonobos, evaluating plans for a mission to assess conditions in Salonga, and promoting awareness of the bonobos' plight through publications and educational outreach.

united states private and voluntary organizations

107...summary of activities and privateness percentages (1999)

The U.S. private and voluntary organizations (PVOs) presented vary in size from several thousand dollars to several million dollars in support and revenue from private, U.S. Government, international agencies, and in-kind donations.

For the past several years, the Foreign Assistance Appropriation Act has included the following provision regarding PVOs:

None of the funds appropriated or otherwise made available by this Act for development assistance may be made available to any United States private and voluntary organiza - tion, except any cooperative development organization, which obtains less than 20 percent of its total annual funding for international activities from sources other than the United States Government.*

The 20 percent requirement does not apply to:

- Non-U.S. PVOs
- Cooperative Development Organizations (CDOs)
- Economic Support Funds (ESF), Disaster Assistance, or Other Non-Development Assistance (DA) Sources of Funding.

n/o No overseas programs

* The Privateness Percentage computation is based on overseas expenses reported by the PVO on its financial statements. This percentage excludes expenses for USAID-initiated activities.
